CHAPTER PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

JOSEPH KOHN, PRESIDENT

Fellow Compatriots,

As my two-year term as President of the Arlington Chapter ends, I want to say a heartfelt “thank You”. It has been one of the great honors of my life to serve alongside men who love God, family, country, and the ideals our Patriot ancestors pledged their lives, fortunes, and sacred honor to defend.

Over the past two years, we have strengthened our fellowship, expanded our presence in the community, and carried out our mission in meaningful and visible ways. We planted a Liberty Tree—an enduring symbol of the spirit of 1776—while continuing to honor service and sacrifice through events like Wreaths Across America and our many ceremonies throughout the year. We have also been blessed to stand shoulder-to-shoulder with our friends in the DAR at multiple local events, proving again that when we work together, our impact multiplies.

Our Color Guard has represented Arlington SAR with excellence—presenting the Colors, supporting commemorations, and reminding the public that the American Revolution is not merely history, but a legacy worth preserving. Behind the scenes, countless members have contributed time, talent, and resources to make these efforts successful. None of this happens because of one person. It happens because members show up, step up, and quietly get the job done.

Now we look ahead to an exciting challenge: preparing for the Arlington 250 event and the broader approach to America’s 250th anniversary. This is our moment to remember, to educate, and to inspire, especially the next generation. My encouragement is simple: stay engaged. Bring a guest. Mentor a new member. Support our youth programs. Continue building strong relationships with our community partners. And keep telling the story of why the American Revolution still matters today.

Thank you again for trusting me with this responsibility. I am proud of this chapter, proud to be one of you, and I look forward to continuing to serve Arlington SAR in whatever capacity is needed.

In patriot service,

Joe Kohn, President, Arlington Chapter SAR

LUCRETIA COUNCIL COCHRAN DAR AND ARLINGTON SAR CHAPTERS PLANT LIBERTY TREE AND DEDICATE MONUMENT AT ARLINGTON VETERANS PARK

LIBERTY TREE DEDICATION

SAR Liberty Tree Program

The 250th SAR Liberty Tree Program was rolled out at the Spring 2023 Leadership meeting by the NSSAR History 250 Committee with the goal of planting 250 Liberty Trees for the 250th Anniversary with at least one tree in each state on or before July 4, 2026. It is felt with by planting a Liberty Tree that it will help educate the public of the importance of the American Revolution and the sacrifices that were made to become our nation. Trees are installed with a dedication plaque. It is recommended that the Liberty Trees be planted in counties or cities named after a Patriot or in a location that will serve as a tribute to veterans.

Nov. 9, 2025— Above- Color Guard member Dan Hamilton and DAR member Nancy Bergvall plant the Liberty Tree.

Nov. 9, 2025— Compatriot Ron Carter served with the Color Guard at the Liberty Tree dedication,

Nov.9, 2025— Chapter members present for the dedication from R-L— Bill Goodman, John Anderson, Chuck Andrews, Color Guard member Dan Hamilton, Pres. Joe Kohn and Vice- Pres. Bob Pope

♦ BULLET POINT

The Chapter extends thanks and gratitude to Wendell Black for his significant donation toward the Chapter's share of the cost for the Cedar Elm Liberty Tree and granite marker.

THE LIBERTY TREE STORY

In the summer of 1765, Boston woke to a sight that would change the colonies forever. Hanging from the branches of a towering old elm—an ordinary tree planted more than a century earlier—were two stuffed effigies swaying in the morning breeze. One mocked Andrew Oliver, the man appointed to enforce the hated Stamp Act. The other, a boot with a devil peering out, ridiculed the British ministers who had dreamed up the tax.

By noon, the streets were packed. Merchants, sailors, apprentices—everyone pressed toward the elm at Essex and Orange Streets. The crowd roared its anger, and the tree became something new: a stage, a symbol, a spark. People began calling it the Liberty Tree, and the ground beneath it Liberty Hall.

From that day on, whenever Boston needed to rise up, the Liberty Tree called them. A flag hoisted above its branches summoned crowds within minutes. Effigies were hung, speeches shouted, and protests launched. Ebenezer Mackintosh, a shoemaker with a talent for rallying crowds, became the “Captain General of the Liberty Tree,” leading marches that shook the city.

When the Stamp Act was finally repealed, lanterns glowed from every branch as Bostonians celebrated beneath their beloved elm. Soon, other towns planted their own liberty trees, and the symbol spread like wildfire.

But the British hated the tree’s power. During the Siege of Boston in 1775, Loyalists crept in and hacked it down, turning the symbol of rebellion into firewood. Yet even in death, the Liberty Tree lived on. Patriots marked the spot with a liberty pole, and years later, the Marquis de Lafayette stood there and declared that the world must never forget what happened beneath those branches.

The Liberty Tree had stood for more than a century—but in its final decade, it helped inspire a revolution.

♦ BULLET POINT

The Chapter extends thanks and gratitude to Brent Murray for his generous contribution enabling the acquisition of a new Chapter Texas SAR Society flag.

PROFILES IN PATRIOTISM

GEORGIA

Before the American Revolution, Georgia was the most hesitant of the thirteen colonies to rebel. It was young, prosperous under British rule, and dependent on British military protection against Native American nations. As a result, Georgia sent no delegates to the First Continental Congress in 1774.

But once fighting broke out at Lexington and Concord in 1775, revolutionary sentiment surged. Local Patriots—called Whigs—took control of the provincial government, formed committees to enforce anti-British trade measures, and gradually pushed Loyalists out of power. St. John Parish acted independently and sent Lyman Hall to the Second Continental Congress, marking Georgia's first step toward independence.

LYMAN HALL: FOUNDING FATHER, PHYSICIAN, CLERGYMAN, STATESMAN AND SIGNER OF THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE

Imagine a young man in colonial Connecticut, born into a family of ministers and scholars, expected to follow a straight, respectable path. That was Lyman Hall—until life pushed him in unexpected directions.

He began as a clergyman, standing in the pulpit of Stratfield Parish. But his pastorate erupted into conflict. Accusations flew, tempers rose, and Hall—under pressure and scandal—was forced out. Most men would have faded quietly. Hall did the opposite. He reinvented himself.

He studied medicine, taught school, and rebuilt his reputation from the ground up. Then he left New England entirely, traveling south to the raw, growing settlements of South Carolina and Georgia. In the small coastal town of Sunbury, he became a respected physician and a leading voice in a community that burned with revolutionary spirit.

When Georgia hesitated to join the rebellion, Hall refused to wait. He convinced his parish—St. John's Parish—to send him alone to the Second Continental Congress. Picture him arriving in Philadelphia: one man representing a sliver of a colony, stepping into a room filled with giants. And yet he took his seat. He spoke. He voted. And in 1776, he signed the Declaration of Independence—one of only four physicians to do so.

The war struck back hard. The British burned Sunbury, forcing Hall and his family to flee north. But when the fighting ended, he returned to Georgia and was elected governor. He pushed for something he believed the new nation desperately needed: education. His efforts helped lead to the chartering of the University of Georgia, the first state-supported university in America.

In his final years, Hall lived quietly on a plantation near the South Carolina border, far from the drama of his earlier life. He died in 1790, but his legacy lived on—in Hall County, in schools bearing his name, and in the granite Signers Monument where his remains now rest beside Georgia's other Declaration signers.

Lyman Hall's life was messy, bold, and full of reinvention. He stumbled, he started over, and he ultimately helped shape a nation.

LACHLAN MCINTOSH: MILITARY AND POLITICAL LEADER

Lachlan McIntosh, a Scotsman, emerged as one of Georgia's most important Patriot military leaders. By 1775, he was already a prominent figure in the colony's resistance movement. He helped organize Georgia's Provincial Congress and was commissioned a colonel in early 1776. McIntosh raised and trained the 1st Georgia Regiment, defended Savannah, and helped repel the British during the Battle of the Rice Boats, earning a promotion to brigadier general in the Continental Army.

He was responsible for protecting Georgia's vulnerable southern frontier from British-controlled Florida, ordering the construction of Fort McIntosh and leading defensive operations along the border.

But McIntosh's Revolutionary career was overshadowed by his bitter political feud with Button Gwinnett, a radical Whig and signer of the Declaration of Independence. Their rivalry—rooted in competing visions for Georgia's leadership—exploded after a failed invasion of Florida. Public insults led to a duel in May 1777, in which McIntosh fatally wounded Gwinnett. Though acquitted, McIntosh's safety became a concern, and George Washington reassigned him to Valley Forge, where he commanded North Carolina troops during the harsh winter of 1777–78.

In 1778, McIntosh was appointed commander of the Western Department, headquartered at Fort Pitt. He attempted to launch an ambitious campaign against the British at Fort Detroit and built Fort Laurens and a second Fort McIntosh, though the Detroit expedition ultimately failed.

Returning south in 1779, McIntosh commanded troops during the Siege of Savannah, one of the war's bloodiest battles. Afterward, he helped defend Charleston until its surrender in 1780, when he was taken prisoner. He remained in captivity until exchanged in 1782.

After the war, McIntosh returned to Georgia to find his plantation ruined. Though he continued to serve in public roles—helping negotiate with Native nations, settling boundary disputes, and welcoming President Washington to Georgia—he never regained his earlier wealth or influence.
